

Ajay Sir as I Know Him

It was July 2011, when I interacted with my Guru Dr. Ajay Kumar Singh for the first time. Though I have known him since July 2009 when he used to take our classes on the Organisation Theory and Behaviour. The first tryst with my destiny followed just next. I went to Sir, as HRM was my first priority for doing my Ph.D. I was very scared to meet Sir in the first place but when I first interacted with him, I knew it quite well then that I have taken the first steady step towards my grandeur. The first thought which came into my mind was that Sir is having no filters in his mind, that he was willing or rather more than willing to help anyone who asks for it. Our Sir is a busy soul, we almost always find him answering calls to so many people in the day, and the calls which are missed are called back at the first leisure minute of his. The ever smiling patron, the energy contours marked right on his forehead and the aura that he commanded was first a puzzle for me; but for now the things have started to unfold. Anybody who has been in association with Sir at any point of time will not deny the fact that his presence brings calmness and restores energy. I have been among the few lucky persons who have had the chance of knowing the reason behind the cool demeanour and the aura that Ajay Sir commands. Why I am writing such things? What is the reason behind my faith in what my Sir says me to do? How I am always mesmerized when I hear him speak? Why I always strongly feel his presence when he is around. Why the aura he commands is so strong? The answer to all these questions will follow next.

Now the things written above shows the outer personality of Ajay Sir, the next things which I will write over here are how he acquired the same. Sir is a Spiritual Guru as of now. He has been trained by Sri Sri Ravishankar ji and Master Del Pe. He has done courses on Angel healing and the likes. He has an instrument from France called ACMOS antennae which can diagnose and heal people. He can bless a person from far off just by taking his name and/or seeing his/her photograph. The things which he can do are mesmerizing and I have personally experienced them when I had the privilege of being in his company at Ahmednagar from Jan. 10 to 14, 2013. The experiences at Ahmednagar were simply out of the world things which we can only marvel at.

The trip to Ahmednagar was spell-bound. The very inception was so enticing that it set the tone for the things to follow. I am a person who has not travelled much, but always had the desire to go around and see the unflinching world. The International conference to Ahmednagar was just a reason. In reality however, the cosmos had something more and divine to offer. My journey towards spirituality is steadily moving forward. I believe that the ultimate belief in spirituality is just the next abode. My interactions with Ajay Sir - my Guru and Guide, have always been enthralling. However, this trip was exceptional and worth remembering. Things began to unfurl right from the flight we boarded together and at this moment I am about to board the return flight to New Delhi. The interactions we do with Sir are just so different from any other interaction. I am such a person who is not a very good listener, but to my amazement I always find myself hearing and noticing every minute thing my Sir says and does, and anything which is directed towards me is always given prime importance.

In Ahmednagar I had the privilege of sharing the room with Sir. I had an opportunity to learn many new things and why they are so important. Further all my queries and doubts were taken up and solved. The first thing which I learnt was we all have a choice of taking up an action. We must know those choices which can have far flinching effect on ourselves. To get angry on any matter is our choice, we can settle the matter with equal ease or not even react to a situation – this is our choice and nobody can take it from us. When I say that we have always a choice in a given situation and the real goodness lies in choosing the righteous one, I mean that we must know what is righteous for us. Like in the situation when we get angry on somebody, we unknowingly harm our nervous system and the person on whom we are angry doesn't even know this!! Likewise we have a choice of what we eat, so we must know what foods are good for us. We have a choice of scheduling our day to day activities and we must know what timings are suited for which activity. The proper choices are all within us, we know what they are, but we fall to the trap to all the unhealthy things; so the ultimate choice for us now is choose the right things rather than falling for something which lures us and we have become the prisoner of the same.

On the last leg of the Ahmednagar trip I got some invaluable messages and learning which I want to share here. The readers are requested to empty their glasses of wisdom now and without being pragmatic to the happenings enjoy the virtues which I lived. We had heard from our driver in Ahmednagar of a spiritual saint who is by choice lying in his bed for the last 12 years, without moving out for a single minute. Ajay Sir wanted to meet the saint personally. We reached the Aashram at 6 pm. From the locals there and the authorities of the temple, where the saint is lying, we came to know that the saint has not shown his face to the devotees for two months now. He has his two followers who change his blanket every day. When we reached there we could see the saint covered with the blanket from head to toe without a sign of movement. When Ajay Sir stood there he was spell-bound. He requested the care takers to let him meet the saint, but they denied him and all others because the saint was in a state of meditation. Ajay sir stood there unperturbed with his hands folded and did not move. We knew at that point that he will not move until he is allowed to meet the Saint. He felt the energy flowing from the body of the saint and did not move a bit. After about half an hour we saw that the Saint started feeling restless inside the blanket and then suddenly we could see the feet of the saint which was not seen since the past two months. The devotees praised the Lord with Jai Ho! Having seen that, everybody started leaving, but Sir stood there, as he was practicing applied kinesiology. While applying the same he asked questions like 'Should I leave right now?' or 'Should I sit and wait?', he got answers in negative i.e. he had to stay, stand, and wait until the calling of the divine Saint. He wanted to meet the Saint in person and did not leave. After sometime more amazement followed. The saint moved the blanket from his body and we could see his divine face from behind the glass door. We were left amazed and later the temple authorities told us that even they were amazed of the determination and humbleness of our Sir which made the Saint show his face to everyone after two months. The mystic did not end there, Ajay Sir wanted to meet the saint. After about 2 hours of continuously standing there with folded hands, the temple authorities decided something unusual. They were feeling the spiritual demeanour of Ajay Sir and succumbed to the faith and devotion of our Sir. They asked the caretakers to open the glass gate and let Ajay Sir meet the Saint. The things which happened next were all the more spiritual. After touching the feet of the saint at the time of entering and again second time at the time of departure our Sir could not hold his ground and took the support of the wall after coming out from the room of the Saint. The devotees seeing this started touching Ajay Sir's feet in all amazement. We were left searching for words, for the things which we saw unfurling was divine and beyond words. Our Sir did meet the saint; awaken him from the two months of veil, proving all of us meanwhile that devotion is sacred and true devotion turns the mystical to be earthly.

The learning lesson for us was that patience is always rewarding. If we desire for something with true heart, and we carry the virtue of patience then the cosmos helps us achieving the same. These are not just words which I am writing; I have experienced them in the true sense. I was a person who never believed in these things but today I know that there are energy fields existing in this earth which are beyond our rational thoughts and logic. This world is really amazing, what we need to do is open our eyes. And I thank the Almighty to have given me an opportunity to be with Ajay Sir. Thank You Sir! You are truly an inspiration and a gem of a person! Your teachings will always be like commandments for me. Thank You!
